Mr. F. MARION CRAWFORD'S

New Christmas Story

THE LITTLE CITY OF HOPE

With Decorated Cover Illustrations Etc. Cloth, $1.25 By the Author of "Saracinesca," "Arethusa," Etc.

A genuine Christmas story, not only in its make-up of beautiful illustrations, attractive printing in two colors, and decorative binding, but in its underlying spirit. It is full of the thought of hope, looking away from present anxieties to better times, peace and good will. There is Christmas spirit in the whole story of love and privation and hope deferred, of the giving that is from the heart, and of the Christmas joy that came in the morning. The book contains some of the most delightful writing Mr. Crawford has ever done—and that is saying a great deal.

LOVE SONGS OLD AND NEW

With Pictures by

CLARENCE F. UNDERWOOD

This is not a book of this year or next, but of all time, for Mr. Underwood has so beautifully caught the spirit of these old tunes that inevitably his pictures must come to be a part of the songs they illustrate. All the tender charm, the noble gallantry, of the airs that moved our grandfathers when they were one and twenty, are here reflected in unfading colors. There is about the book the aroma of old-fashioned roses, the suggestion of an ancient melodeon playing in a lavender-scented parlor, and through it breathes the spirit of love, both of youth's fiery passion and the enduring affection of age.

An Excellent Mystery Story

Octave Thanet's story of "The Lion's Share" is a thoroughly readable book. It will be found satisfying by the reader who likes a tale of plot and incident sharply and well told. It has good characters and good dialogue. It is entertaining by reason of its abundant puzzle—by the skilful building of this and by the equally skilful dissection and elucidation of it. We have read it with entire and unusual interest and gratification. It is all right. A fine detective story.

HOLIDAY GIFT BOOKS

DILLON WALLACE

Author of "The Lure of the Labrador Wild"

Ungava Bob A Tale of the Fur Trappers

"Its descriptions of the life of the fur trappers will please both young and old. One can hardly believe that this is the author's first work of fiction, for it suggests extended experience as a novelist." —Boston Budget. Illustrated, $1.50.

ROBERT E. KNOWLES

Author of St. Cuthbert's, etc.

The Dawn at Shanty Bay

A Story of Christmas of To-Day

A story bathed in the spirit of "good will to men" from first to last. Mr. Knowles has a way of making us feel that away down deep there is a tender heart in the most crusty of human beings. The people in this story might have lived next door to any one; however, as the story goes, they lived in the Country of the White Christmas. Decorated and illustrated by Griselda M. McClure. Net, $1.00.

W. J. DAWSON

Author of "Makers of English Fiction"

A Prophet in Babylon

"IN HIS STEPS" sold millions in Great Britain and the United States. But here is a book that is no less vital. This book should make an epoch in the life of our generation."—Brooklyn Eagle. $1.50.

WINIFRED KIRKLAND

The First Work of a Novelist of Promise

Polly Pat's Parish

"A 'really and truly' character like Mrs. Wiggs is Polly Pat. There's plenty of dash and unexpected variety, and Miss Kirkland's art promises good things for the reading public."—Newark Evening News. Illustrated by Griselda M. McClure. $1.00.

JAMES M. LUDLOW

Author of "Deborah," etc.

Jesse ben David A Shepherd of Bethlehem

A Story of the First Christmas

What the Shepherd told the Wise Men concerning "The Star of all the Ages," is here retold with a wealth of artistic imagery and literary finish. The author's gem is set in true Oriental colors by the artist, a rare presentation of the story of the ever blessed birthday. Decorated and illustrated by Samuel M. Palmer. Net, $1.00.

EDWARD A. STEINER

Author of "On the Trail of the Immigrant"

The Mediator A Tale of the Old World and the New

"This is no ordinary novel—it is one that has been written for a great purpose, the revelation of the feelings of an alien people, and Dr. Steiner has performed a praiseworthy task."— Chicago Journal. $1.50.

The Queenly Mother in the Realm of Home

By MARGARET E. SANGSTER, Author of "Winsome Womanhood," etc.

It is a question whether Mrs. Sangster could convey a sweeter or more inspiring message than she does here. It is a vase of the most beautiful flowers of a lifetime's planting and culture. One somehow feels certain that this book gathers the most brilliant rays from the light which this radiant woman has for years cast over American home life.—Illustrated. Cloth, $1.50 net.

Poland, a Knight Among Nations

By LOUIS E. VAN NORMAN

With Introduction by Helena Modjeska

For sheer fascination, Mr. Van Norman makes us think that Poland has not an equal among the nations. Every page is crowded with romance. N. Y. Times says: "A sympathetic first-hand study of a noble race of vigorous virtues and lovable faults."—Illustrated. $1.50 net.

The Continent of Opportunity South America

By FRANCIS E. CLARK

Dr. Clark is himself a good observer and a most interesting journalist, and for concise information, historical, climatic, economical, and religious, it would be hard to surpass this. His itinerary was very complete, and the opportunities offered him for meeting Presidents and officers of the various republics add a personal flavor to the traveler's description.—Illustrated. Cloth, $1.50 net.

Concerning THREE WEEKS by Elinor Glyn

In view of the immediate success of Mrs. Glyn's remarkable story and the universal discussion of its merits, the publishers feel that the trade will be interested in the opinions of the reviewers all over the country

PRO and CON

"The uncritical populace don't judge a book like this—they read it!"
—Philadelphia North American.

"The author asks all who read it to be just and not skip a line. The appeal seems needless, as doubtless there are many who will peruse for a second time to make sure that none has been skipped." —The Boston Globe.

"It is a book to make one forget that the world is gray. Be as sad, as sane as you like, for all the other days of your life; but steal one mad day, I adjure you, and read 'Three Weeks'."—PERCIVAL POLLARD, in Town Topics.

"A cleverly told tale, full of dainty sentiment, of poetic dreaming, and dramatic incident. —Brooklyn Eagle.

"Mrs. Glyn has never written before with anything like such poetic sentiment or such admirable descriptive power. Readers who can tolerate a defiance of the conventions will find 'Three Weeks' a dainty romance."
—The London Times.

"The characters in this novel appeal to us with an intensity that causes us to rank 'Three Weeks' with 'The Visits of Elizabeth,' as an example of the most brilliant in twentieth-century fiction." —The Baltimore Sun.

"We often hear the expression 'not fit for publication'. 'Three Weeks' isn't . . . It is not so much the actual story—it is the way the author has told it. . . . 'The Visits of Elizabeth' was an entertaining, if not very proper book. 'Three Weeks' is fit only for the garbage pail." —St. Paul Pioneer Press.

"A 'best seller' no doubt, because first it treats of subjects that had best be left alone and because parts of the book are interesting; so is Boccaccio's 'Decameron', but one would not place it in the hands of very young men and women without expecting a thrashing."
—Atlanta Georgian and News.

"The novel is certainly one that from a literary point is to be appreciated almost without stint, but from the conventional standpoint it has entirely lost its anchorage."
—Salt Lake Tribune.

"It is a book which might very well acquire a large circulation. But it never will be a favorite for Sunday School libraries, nor will it be chosen by careful parents for the reading of 'the young person'. It is somewhat 'strong meat' for any but seasoned readers.
—Chicago Examiner.

"However it may be viewed, 'Three Weeks' is not a novel for the jeune fille, even though, as has been pointed out, the 'j. f. is not necessarily a d. f.'" —Los Angeles Herald.

Journal of a Russian Prisoner's Wife in Japan

Illustrated from Photographs. $1.50 net.

A prominent Russian officer was captured at the Yalu and taken to a military prison in Japan. His wife goes to him from St. Petersburg, and as a nurse in a military hospital tells all the average reader wants to know of the war from the unusual viewpoint of the captured Russian officers as they arrived after each disaster. A very human picture drawn by a bright, observing, fearless woman whose heart is in her work, of the horrors, the grim humor, the pathetic and even romantic incidents of the war.

"Holds a tremendous human interest. . . . Writes with wit and a delightfully feminine abandon."—The Outlook.

HENRY HOLT AND COMPANY 29 W. 23d St. NEW YORK

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN AND COMPANY will close their publishing season with the issue of the following important volumes on Saturday next, November 30:

The lateness of the season should not interfere with the success of these publications, for they are books of compelling interest and their announcements have appeared in all the important December magazines and the book numbers of the leading dailies and religious weeklies.

Furthermore 200,000 copies of the Riverside Holiday Bulletin are being mailed to individuals, containing full descriptions of each of these volumes.

AUGUSTUS SAINT-GAUDENS

By Royal Cortissoz

An authoritative study of Saint-Gaudens's completed work, and the first adequate collection of his sculptures. Royal Cortissoz, whose standing as an art critic is second to none in this country, was for many years the intimate friend of Mr. Saint-Gaudens. His account of Saint-Gaudens and his work is at once an authoritative piece of criticism and a vivid and intimate portrayal of the sculptor's personality.

With 24 full-page photogravure illustrations. Tall 4to, $7.50 net. Postpaid.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

By Carl Schurz and Truman H. Bartlett

This book follows in general form the recent sumptuous editions of the Life of Cardinal Wolsey and the Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin. Carl Schurz's brief biography of Lincoln has already taken a place as one of the classic short lives of great men. Eighteen of the most authentic and characteristic portraits of Lincoln, reproduced in photogravure, are accompanied by an essay by Truman H. Bartlett, who has made a life long study of the physiognomy of Lincoln. 4to, boxed, $10.00 net. Postpaid.

NAPOLEON

By Theodore A. Dodge

"It is not too much to say that in this work Colonel Dodge has written the best military history o Napoleon that has ever been published in the English language."—Outlook, New York.

"The plan of the book is excellent, and much praise can be given to the execution."—London Army and Navy Gazette.

THE ART OF LANDSCAPE GARDENING

By Humphry Repton

A valuable record of the experiences of the founder of landscape gardening. The book embodies the results of Repton's work in England during the eighteenth century, and is of practical value to landscape architects and those interested in the laying-out of great estates. Fully illustrated, 8vo, boxed. $3.00 net. Postage 20 cents.

MORNINGS IN THE COLLEGE CHAPEL

Second Series

By Francis G. Peabody

In their conciseness of utterance, depth of spirituality, and the directness of their appeal to reason, it would be hard to excel these seventy-four short addresses. There is hardly a point of view or an intellectual or moral difficulty which is not touched upon with great literary ability and spiritual insight. 16mo. $1.25 net. Postage 12 cents.

SHIP SUBSIDIES

By Walter T. Dunmore

Few economic problems have been kept more constantly in the field of practical politics in the United States during the last decade than that of encouraging our merchant marine by payment of subsidies. Mr. Dunmore has made an interesting and scholarly study of the whole subject. Large crown 8vo. $1.00 net. Postage 10 cents.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY have just brought out a pamphlet by Dr. Maurice J. Burstein, entitled "The Ideal System of Finance—Inadequacy of the Present Money Currency, a plan for the reformation of the monetary system leading to national prosperity."

B. W. HUEBSCH has just ready a new book by Edward Howard Griggs, the well-known lecturer and educator, entitled "The Use of the Margin," in which he discusses the problem of utilizing the time one has to spend as one pleases to attain the highest culture of mind and spirit.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO. are about to bring out Charles Munn Clarke's long-delayed book, "Boyhood Days on the Farm," which has taken so well with the trade that a second printing was necessary before the book might be put on the market.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY will publish before the end of this month a long poem by James Whitcomb Riley, entitled "Boys of the Old Glee Club," written in the author's famous dialect and presenting such village characters as the title suggests—shoemakers, storekeepers and farmers, whose gift for song used to thrill the "gethering" at "sociables, by G. A. R.'s, campaign meetin's, and the like." They also announce a new novel by Meredith Nicholson, entitled "Rosalind at Red Gate," which, it is said, is a near neighbor to the famous "House of a Thousand Candles."

DODD, MEAD & CO. have just ready a work on "Franz Grillparzer and the Austrian Drama," by Gustav Pollak, the first comprehensive and critical estimate in the English language of the great Vienna dramatist, of whose "Sappho" Byron, in 1821, spoke as being "superb and sublime." They have also just ready "Cairo, Jerusalem and Damascus—Three Chief Cities of the Egyptian Sultans," by Dr. D. S. Margoliouth, whose knowledge of the subject is well nigh unrivalled. The work is illustrated in color after water-color originals by W. S. S. Tyrwhitt, who for years has been engaged upon this series, and by plates after paintings by Reginald Barratt, whose architectural water-colors are well known for their opulence and accuracy.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & CO. have just ready "The Code of Victor Jallot," a new story by Edward Childs Carpenter, author of "Captain Courtesy," which received general commendation last fall from press and public. As already noted by us, the story deals with the dramatic life of early Louisiana. Victor Jallot, "the gentleman in motley," as he was sometimes called, the hero of the story, was the first Louisianian to write a play—"The Gateway of Dreams"—which was performed at the Théatre St. Pierre, in New Orleans, as early as 1803, and he promises to be an original and fascinating character in American literature. They have also just ready "Under the Holly Bough," a collection of Christmas poems, edited by Russelle Warren, handsomely decorated in colors and illustrated with photogravures; "Colonel Crockett's Co-operative Christmas," by Rupert Hughes, a Christmas story in which Colonel Crockett, of Texas, having spent one forlorn Christmas in New York, resolved to make his second one an event long to be remembered in the annals of Gotham; "Sweet Arden," by George Morley, a description of the Shakespeare country, along the Avon, through the forest of Arden and over the fields through which the great bard is supposed to have tramped, also, "The Auld Ayrshire of Robert Burns," by T. F. Henderson, who gives a vivid description of the Burns country, with illustrations in color.

Six Sforza Dukes in all wielded the sceptre of Milan. Of these two, if not three, might be taken as representative types of the many-sided Renaissance despot. Francesco I., the greatest soldier of his day, forms the pre-eminent example of the despot skilled in the arts of war, uniting in his person all those qualities which make the founder of a state. Ludovico Il Moro, as a diplomatist, as an economist and as a patron proved himself supreme in those arts of peace which have won for this Italian prince his peculiar place in history. Galeazzo Maria Sforza was the typical villain. Miss Ady relates the history of these six Dukes, with chapters also on art, literature and social life of the period. Bibliography (6 p.). Index.

Treats of the Bible as a book; the Bible as an ancient book; the Bible as the book of God. Reverence for the Bible, the author thinks, "will not hinder but will stimulate thorough investigation of its credentials and its meaning. All Christian doctrine must give an account of itself and be judged by our conceptions of God, the supreme court of appeal."

Study of the love and marriage of a man and woman ideally mated in all ways save that of age. She is over forty, clever, beautiful, but saddened by the experiences of an unhappy marriage; he is twenty-five, running over with the joy of living and endowed with a marvellous voice that makes him the perfect "Lohengrin." Mr. Benson skilfully traces the working out of this difficult situation, where neither the man nor the woman ever wavers in devotion, yet pain is inevitably mixed with happiness. Scenes are laid in London and rural England, with closing chapters in a Swiss health resort.

Honoré Daumier, born at Marseilles in 1808, died in 1879, was in his day a political force dreaded by his foes, not least by King Louis Philippe, who so feared the effect of his cartoons that on several occasions he had him imprisoned. The bulk of this volume consists of half-tone reproductions of his most important caricatures, and Miss Cary, author of "The Rossettis," "William Morris," etc., has written a thirty-five page explanatory and critical introduction.

Claude, M. Memoirs of Monsieur Claude, Chief of Police under the Second Empire; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1907. c. 321 p. pors. O. cl., $4 net.

M. Claude was for many years the Chief of the Police of Paris. He was active in the investigation of some of the most mysterious and remarkable crimes of the century, and, by virtue of his office, was involved in many political intrigues of the greatest importance and interest. His memoirs, which he wrote with great detail, have interest as detective stories and permanent value as original documents in the social and political history of France. Miss Wormeley, in the present translation, has selected from the ten volumes of the French original the episodes in which Claude was involved, from the years immediately before Napoleon's famous coup d'état down to the dramatic finale of Sedan and the Commune.

Couch, Mabel Quiller-. Troublesome Ursula; with [illegible]. by Mabel L. Attwell. Phil., Lippincott, 1907. 311 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Through a sincere desire to help her daughter-in-law Grandmamma Snelling offers, after the funeral, to take to her own home one of her son's three fatherless children. Her choice falls upon Ursula, a girl of eleven, who is broken-hearted at having to leave her mother and her baby brothers. Her mother does not willingly give her up, but cannot prevail against the elder Mrs. Snelling. Ursula's unhappy life with her grandmamma is the story. The old lady is not bad nor even unkind knowingly, but does not know how to manage a child or how to win her love. All Ursula's worst traits are brought to the surface, and after many conflicts she runs away, is lost, and nearly dies, worn out by her wanderings.

The atrocities permitted and believed to be incited by King Leopold of Belgium in the Congo are the chief subject of the book. Mr. Davis spent over a month in the Congo and endorses all, even the very worst, that has been told of the condition of the miserable natives. His investigations extended to the coasts, the reader obtaining a graphic picture of the rubber and ivory trades, and the forlorn, neglected towns that have sprung up here and there. His journey from Southampton to Cape Town had in it many amusing episodes. The return trip was made along the east coast of Africa, where stops were made.

Downes, Alfred M. Fire fighters and their pets; with many il. reproduced from photographs. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 13+185 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Mr. Downes is secretary of the New York Fire Department. This is the first time the full story of the firemen has been written in one book. It describes the training, the discipline, and the pastimes of every-day life in the engine-house. The mascot every company owns—a dog, cat, or monkey, perhaps—is presented as a loyal member of the company, loved by the men and sharing the heroism of their acts. Famous New York fires, like the Windsor Hotel and the Hoboken docks, have been reproduced in thrilling detail to give some idea of just what the fire department does when these disasters come, as well as what magnificent deeds are done by modest nameless heroes.

Subject of this biography was born in Maine in 1806 and died in 1869. He was senator from Maine for fourteen years and gave the casting vote for the acquittal of President Johnson on his impeachment, thereby arousing most violent personal antagonism. In 1864 he became Secretary of the Treasury in succession to Chase, and his action during a crisis in the money market soon after had an important bearing on the establishment of the national bank system. The author, a brigadier-general, U. S. A., did not live to see this book published, its revision and publication having been completed by James D. Fessenden. Index.

This is one of several studies in Spanish history made by this author. It aims to give the true inner history of the decadent king and his artistic and poetic court. The material for it has been gathered from sources, largely manuscript, and all contemporary, hitherto unused for the purpose by English writers. Illustrated with reproductions of portraits, six by Velasquez. Index.

This study of a peculiar temperament is a good companion picture to "Pam." Lady Brigit at twenty-five is heartily sick of the life she is leading. She both dislikes her mother and her mother's fast friends, and determines to marry. She hastily engages herself to a rich old man who drinks deeply, and within a few hours promises to marry a fascinating young man, some years her junior, who is the son of a world-renowned violinist. The violinist has a wife, but she is no obstacle to the violinist falling in love with Brigit, who finally is sure he is the "only one." They are preparing to elope when the story comes to an unexpected end by the death of the violinist's poor old wife.

Based on sound pedagogic principles, and includes carefully selected and arranged lesson material. It is more than a kindergarten method; it is also more elementary than any course of piano study; therefore it bridges the gap between kindergarten play and actual piano work. It is a practical system for young teachers and for mothers to use in starting their children too young to go to a regular teacher. Elaboration of a series of articles published two years ago in The Ladies' Home Journal.

A study of Napoleon's character and career. One of the notable features of the work is the way in which Dr. Lenz, of the University of Berlin, depicts the early mental development of the young Corsican. Napoleon himself in his St. Helena memoirs makes Toulon the starting point, but Dr. Lenz demonstrates that it was but one great step forward in an existence already full of eventful activity. He throws new light on what may be termed Napoleon's "First phase." The book provides a complete key to the whole tangled story of the Napoleonic period. Dr. Lenz shows how each campaign fits into the general scheme of Napoleon's rise and fall, while he succeeds in keeping the personal element in the foreground and in presenting a vivid picture of the man.

Attempts to answer the riddle of life, to explain what is the secret of the stream of circumstances on which we are carried. Our life here should be only a preparation for the life to come; our aim should be to grow like Christ, through whom we have a vision of God and of man. Jesus Christ in his perfect life has given the answer to all our questionings, as well as furnished the divine ideal of holiness.

The writer's object in preparing this little book has been to teach English children to love the French language by means of simple, easy translations of those among our nursery rhymes which they know and like the best, selecting from each not more than four verses, so as not to overburden a young memory. English and French versions are given, followed by the French rhyme set to music. Illustrated by marginal pictures.

Marden, Philip Sanford. Greece and the Ægean Islands. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1907. c. 14+386 p. pls. map, O. cl., $3 net, boxed.

Mr. Marden has made several visits to this ancient land and he has produced a book of travel and description for the many tourists who now find their way to the Grecian Archipelago. Added to a thorough description of the mainland are chapters on the islands of Delos, Samos, Rhodes, Thera, Cos and Crete, as well as important localities along the western coast of Asia Minor. There is little of technical detail and less of archæology, but there is plenty to interest and assist the traveller and to refresh his memory of ancient history.

Ransome, Arthur. Bohemia in London; with il. by Fred Taylor. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1907. c. 293 p. O. cl., $2 net.

Mr. Ransome, author of "Souls of the streets," has set himself to depict the strange, tense, joyful and despairing, hopeful and sordid existence in London of adventurous young people fresh from conventional homes and consequently ready to live in any other way than that to which they have been accustomed. Therefore, the author, describing his own arrival in Chelsea, pictures the Bohemian life of that artist retreat; tells of Soho restaurants, Charing Cross bookshops, Fleet Street and its newspapers, Hampstead Heath, etc., weaving in historical associations as well as personal reminiscences. Illustrated by black and white pictures on a buff background and many small inserts.

Ruville, Albert von. William Pitt, Earl of Chatham; tr. by H. J. Chaytor, assisted by Mary Morison; with an introd. by Prof. Hugh E. Egerton. N. Y., Putnam, 1907. 3 v., 26+391; 6+415; 6+427 p. pors. O. cl., per set, *$9 net, boxed.

With a German's thoroughness, research and knowledge this absolutely impartial life of the great statesman is written. Begins with an exhaustive account of "Diamond" Pitt and of his amiable son, Pitt's father, and details all the influences that formed Pitt's character. Intricate politics, schemes, manœuvres and personalities are studied with patience and insight. The figure of Chatham remains much as England has been accustomed to regard him, only somewhat toned down, a foreigner hardly being able to feel the patriotic enthusiasm of a fellow countryman. The translation does justice to the book, and the introduction by Prof. Egerton is illuminating.

[in color] by Lillie V. O'Ryan, Maynard Dixon, [and others.] N. Y., Paul Elder & Co., [1907.] c. 9+367 p. O. cl., $2 net, boxed.

The fund, which the sale of this book is proposed to aid, was started by "The Spinners" soon after the earthquake in San Francisco with $200 from their treasury. Other contributions have brought the fund to $1000, with which a bond has been bought and the interest from it will be paid to Miss Ina D. Coolbrith, the poet, who was bereft of everything by the fire. When Miss Coolbrith shall no longer need to be a beneficiary the fund shall serve to aid some other writer, artist or musician in need of help. This collection of sixteen stories by California writers includes "Concha Argüello, Sister Dominica," by Gertrude Atherton; "The ford of Crèvecœur," by Mary Austin; "A Californian," by Geraldine Bonner; "Gideon's knock," by Mary Halleck Foote; "A yellow man and a white," by Eleanor Gates; "The judgment of man," by James Hopper; "The league of the old men," by Jack London; "The contumacy of Sarah L. Walker," by Miriam Michelson; "A lost story," by Frank Norris; "Miss Juno," by C: Warren Stoddard, etc. Illustrated by six full-page plates in color; bound in blue homespun linen decorated with minature portrait.

The author of "The Florence of Landor" writes of several other of the leading cities of Italy, telling of the reminiscences that cling to them from having been the home of celebrated persons, the art works that are to be found in them, and the natural beauty that belongs to them. Of Rome, to which half the volume is given up, Naples, Venice and adjoining cities, we obtain many delightful details. Miss Whiting begins with the period of modern art in Rome and the social life in the Eternal City, her reminiscences including a number of American artists and authors.

Wilson, Harry Leon. Ewing's lady. N. Y., Appleton, 1907. c. 8+316 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Begins on a Lower California ranch. Ewing is called the "Kid." He lives with an old soldier and paints pictures. The lady riding 'round the country comes upon the "Kid." She encourages him in his art and finally induces her brother to send him to New York to study. That lady devotes her life to the "Kid." There is a mystery connected with his birth that almost brings tragedy into the story.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

NOVEMBER 23, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE FINANCIAL STRINGENCY AND THE BOOKTRADE.

IT has been called a panic—but it is not a panic. People have for the most part kept their heads, and the leading bankers have reasoned with the situation in large-minded co-operation, protecting the weak points of the financial line as a general brings up his reserve to the weak points in his line of defense as the attack develops. We have been passing through a period of wild inflation—not of currency, but of security valuations, and the present reaction has the natural and necessary result. To blame the President and his administration for the present condition is to shut eyes to the real underlying causes.

There is no doubt, however, that although there has been no panic, in a close sense, there has been a financial stringency which affects actual trade, and which will continue for some time to affect it. The prompt action of the government will in all probability save the day, though it is administering to the market a large dose of alcoholic stimulant the effects of which may be of doubtful good. The abiding fact is that the farmers of the West and the planters of the South are prosperous; and unless prosperity is strangled by lack of current cash, and resultantly of credit, it will continue and we shall come out all right.

The booktrade has, perhaps, the least cause of all trades to be uneasy. The curtailment of their forces by industrial establishments will affect it slightly, but not greatly. The large number of public libraries will continue their buying—and they are now a great factor in the trade; but the strength of the booktrade is in the fact that it is midway between the necessaries and the luxuries. The richer class will curtail their travelling, they will not buy expensive jewelry, and their Christmas purchases are the more likely to be of books. This will be true, also, of the great middle class, people who find in books a convenient and inexpensive present. A round of the jobbers and book concerns in New York this week brings evidence that the booktrade is keeping well up. There is, therefore, good reason to hope that Christmas-tide sales will be good and that publishers and booksellers will continue to do well with really good books. It is quite probable that the avalanche of publications of the past year may be somewhat checked, and the issues of new publications diminished for the next year—but if things keep about as they are, we think this will be the chief effect upon the booktrade.

INVOICES FOR GOODS SENT INTO CANADA.

A. T. CHAPMAN, of Montreal, calls the attention of American exporters of goods to Canada to the necessity of more care in making out invoices. According to the regulations of the Canadian Customs Department, invoices properly certified and signed must be supplied to the consignee in triplicate, and in cases where enclosures are made they must be accurately listed on the shipper's invoice.

The customs authorities are becoming very insistent and strict in enforcing their regulations, and the omission of an item, or inaccuracy in an invoice, may delay the delivery of goods for weeks and cause considerable worry and trouble to the consignee, particularly at the holiday season.

A PRINT-PAPER MERGER.

WITHIN a few weeks, it is said, every print paper mill and sulphite plant in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan, which means the entire print paper market in the Middle West, will be under the control of the International Paper Company of New York. John G. Hanrahan, of New York, who has been engineering the deal, is at present in Appleton, Wis., completing the merger.

One manufacturer, according to a special despatch to the New York World, said that the owners, who several years ago gave options on their mills to be sold outright for cash, have now agreed to take bonds of the merger company as part payment and to accept stock in the merger for the remainder.

"EXPOSITION DU LIVRE" IN PARIS.

THE international so-called "Exposition du Livre" which was opened in August in the Grand Palais, Champs Elysées, Paris, and closed in October, has caused great disappointment to all who expected to find books there. The "Cercle de la Librairie," the French booktrade association, for special reasons, did not take part in it; consequently nearly all French publishers abstained from being represented and the big hall had to be filled up with other objects, foreign to the purpose of the exhibition. The Parisian dailies and weeklies were well represented, but if foreign countries had not participated the exhibition could scarcely have taken place.

The United States were the most prominent among the foreign countries represented. Among others there were the fine exhibits of the Mergenthaler Linotype Co., The Michle Co., Hammond, Roux & Co., of Chicago, and others, and, in a special collection arranged by H. Tolman, Director of the American Institute of Social Service, Commissioner-General of the American Section at the Exhibition, the exhibit of The Monoline, Funk & Wagnalls Co., The Bayard Chemical Co., and others.

The American periodical and daily press was represented by Saarbach's News Exchange, of Paris, London and Mainz; by Munsey's, McClure's, Everybody's, Argosy, Woman, Life, Puck, Judge, Outing, Leslie's Weekly, Harper's Weekly, Harper's Monthly, Telegraph, and others.

Although, as mentioned before, the exhibition was particularly well patronized by the United States and also by Germany and England it must be considered a failure because it did not hold to what it promised to be—an "Exposition du Livre."

BRUNO CONRAD.

WHITTIER CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS.

THE centenary of Whittier's birth, December 17, will no doubt be observed by the schools and literary societies throughout the country. Special celebrations will be held at Haverhill and Amesbury, Mass., the birthplace and home of the poet. A meeting is being arranged by the citizens of Haverhill for the afternoon of the 17th at the Universalist Church, and it is expected that Mr. Frank B. Sanborn and Professor Bliss Perry, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, will make addresses. There will also be a poem by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe. Whittier's birthplace at East Haverhill and "The Buttonwoods," the home of the historical society, will be open to the public during the day; and there will be an exhibit of Whittier manuscripts and first editions at the Haverhill Public Library.

The commemorative exercises at Amesbury will be opened with music by the school children. Hon. A. P. White, of Salem, will read a letter which President Roosevelt has written for the occasion. Addresses are expected by Governor Curtis Guild, of Massachusetts, Booker T. Washington, Edmund Clarence Stedman, and ex-Governors John D. Long and John L. Bates. There will be a reading by Mrs. Annie Fields, and incidental music. The invited guests will lunch at the Whittier Home Association before going to the meeting.

A most fitting and desirable little volume for the commemoration of the centenary of Whittier's birth, on December 17, has been written and compiled by Professor Bliss Perry. His introductory sketch gives a fresh and informing portrayal of Whittier's life, and points out the significance of his poetry for American readers. The selection contains such poems as are most essential to an understanding of Whittier's personality and surroundings; and they represent also the characteristic themes which occupied his mind during his stormy manhood and serene old age. The volume has two characteristic portraits, and is issued in a large-paper edition of 400 copies and in school editions bound in linen and paper, besides the regular edition.

The authorized and definitive "Life of Whittier," by Samuel T. Pickard, formerly published in two volumes, is now to be had in a new one-volume revised edition, with photogravure illustrations.

Whittier's authorized publishers, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., issue the works of the Quaker poet in various forms to suit all tastes and pocket-books. They have four different one-volume editions of his poetical works and illustrated holiday editions of "Snow-Bound," "The Tent on the Beach," "At Sundown," etc. "Whittier Land," by Samuel T. Pickard, deserves mention as a valuable little handbook containing interesting anecdotes of the poet, descriptions of the historical aspect of the regions associated with his life, and numerous illustrations from photographs.

Whittier's works naturally find their place in an American library for much the same reason as Longfellow's. He has so voiced the thoughts of the people that one feels that such expression of them should be always at hand. His verses are read by the cottage fireside, recited in the schools, proclaimed from the pulpit and platform. He has given us some of the most graphic and beautiful descriptions of American nature in the language, and the most stirring appeals to patriotism of any of our poets.

WHAT ENGLISH PUBLISHERS READ.

THE editor of the London Book Monthly has induced several English publishers to tell their colleagues what books they read for their personal refreshment "when they are weary of MSS. and time permits," and prints the result in his issue for November.

Mr. John Murray says if he were to indulge in such a "stretch of imagination" as to suppose he could get away to some secluded spot for some months, and had to select a small number of books as his sole means of recreation, he would take with him a Bible and Prayer-Book, a Shakespeare, Virgil, Horace, and a copy of Boswell's "Johnson," (Croker's edition,) would, of course, be essential. Next would come Lockhart's "Life of Scott," Byron's "Poetry and Letters," Smiles's "Lives of the Engineers," Yule's "Marco Polo," Froude's "History of England," Mahan's "Nelson," Maxwell's "Duke of Wellington," Carlyle's "French Revolution," Gibbon's "Rome," Motley's "Dutch Republic," Macaulay's "Essays," "The Student's Hume," and Fletcher's "History of England." Then Scott's and Thackeray's novels, some of Dickens's, George Eliot's, Dumas's, and Victor Hugo's novels, "The Arabian Nights," "Kim," and all of Kipling's Short Stories, Newbolt's "The Island Race," "The Bon Gaultier Ballads," and "The Ingoldsby Legends." To those he would add a volume or two of sermons or theological essays, a few books on socialism (pro and con), some French memoirs, Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates"—a small biographical dictionary, Whitaker's Almanac and a good atlas.

Mr. Frederick Macmillan's list is almost as long as Mr. Murray's, including over a hundred works chiefly of imagination, in regard to most of which he makes the astounding statement that he would "be prepared to answer an examination paper." Mr. Macmillan's list includes Trollope's Barsetshire novels, the "Bon Gaultier Ballads" and "Mr. Sponge's Sporting Tour."

Mr. Edward Marston thinks if publishers read one-twentieth of the MSS. they receive they can read nothing else. The rest of their spare time they should spend on the golf links, and perhaps a few of the wise ones should go a-fishing, and read—if they must read—in bed!

Mr. Edward Bell likes Scott, Miss Austen, Thackeray, Dickens and Trollope, but he prefers history, and has often taken away with him "such books as Carlyle's 'French Revolution' and 'Frederick the Great.'"

One of the most interesting of the letters is that from Mr. William Heinemann, who declares that everything he reads "has some sort of relation to what I do or do not publish. Even," he goes on to say, "when I take down a volume of Balzac or a play of Shakespeare, I fancy I am reading it to 'brace' up my literary palate—jaded as it becomes through the sweets and savories of my daily menu. I have next to my bed at this moment De Quincey's 'Suspiria' and Marni's 'Comment elles se Donnent,' and these two books seem to be pointing out what I would and would not wish to print—though I put them there with no view to study or profit. It's instinct, I suppose, or a pernicious habit."

Mr. Arthur Waugh, of Chapman & Hall, first says that his favorite reading is his own advertisements, but later on he confesses to a taste for the old poets, and eighteenth-century novelists.

Mr. John Lane says: "I shall never become tired of William Watson's 'Coronation Ode,' or Stephen Phillips's 'Marpessa,' or Francis Coutts's 'Angling Days,' or of John Davidson's 'Fleet Street Ecologues;' and I never tire of reading Mrs. Meynell's poems. I am old-fashioned enough, too, to read with great enjoyment most of Le Gallienne's poems and prose. If my mind turns to fiction, I have Mr. W. J. Locke with his 'The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne' and 'The Beloved Vagabond,' or Miss Willcocks with her 'The Wingless Victory' and 'Widdicombe.' However, I —like most other publishers, I suspect—have very little time for anything beyond desultory reading; but I try to read most of the works on the English school of art. I have a particular interest in the early water-color men, whose art is essentially English. Then, again, I take more than a passing interest in works relating to porcelain, china, glass, old furniture and prints."

But the article in the Book Monthly is too interesting and suggestive to be quoted in extracts, and we therefore refer our readers to the original as printed in the November number of that magazine.

INKLESS PRINTING.

It will be remembered that some years ago great things were predicted in the way of inkless printing, the method involving the use of a specially treated paper and an electric current passing through the forme. The process got no further than the company promoting stage, and the inkmakers breathed again. Just recently, however, according to the London Stationery Trades Journal, a new method has been patented in Germany by a photographic printing concern whose name for the present is withheld. The patent obtained by this concern cites that "a printing medium is applied to a surface on which the parts in relief, and the parts not in relief, are of different material and have different effect on the printing medium, so that the printing medium is retained on the relief parts only. For example, a gelatine line or half-tone relief on glass or other material is flooded with hydrogen-peroxide solution, which is absorbed by the gelatine and quickly evaporates from the glass, so that a print can be made on gelatinized paper, satin paper, or textile fabric and developed in the well-known manner." This is not quite the same thing as inkless printing from type, but it has some applications in that direction.

PAPER FROM PEAT.

The peat bog, according to R. S. S. Bergh, U. S. Consul at Gothenberg, Sweden, furnishes the latest substitute for wood in the manufacture of paper. Paper making from peat on a commercial scale has already begun in Sweden, where a company, capitalized at more than $1,000,000, has made extensive purchases of peat bogs and prepared plans for the erection of mills for turning out wrapping paper and pasteboard. The money for the enterprise comes largely from London, but the process by which the vegetable fibre of the peat will be converted into paper is covered by an American patent.

It is claimed that a ton of paper worth $30 can be made from peat at a total cost of $15, thus leaving a satisfactory margin of profit. It is further claimed, according to Mr. Bergh, "that it takes only two hours to convert the peat into paper. It should not, however, be expected that peat as a material for paper making can take the place of wood pulp for all purposes. If it helps to meet the demand for the coarser grades of paper and thus relieves the pressure upon the timber supply it will do a great deal for the forests of the United States.

"The quantity of peat in the world is enormous. It exists in all the countries of northern Europe and has been used as fuel for centuries. Deposits from 10 to 50 feet deep and many miles in extent are not unusual. Siberia has thousands of square miles of peat, and much exists in the United States and Canada. It is a vegetable substance, deposited by slow accumulations during thousands of years, the process being similar to that by which coal was formed.

"Many good qualities have been claimed for paper made from peat. It is said that an article wrapped in it will not be attacked by moths, and for that reason it is assured to be particularly fitted for boxes and bags for storing furs and woollen clothing. It is further claimed that a process of bleaching will give the paper a snow white color, and thus make it equal to the best pulp papers for printing purposes, but this claim does not appear to have been established by actual tests on a commercial scale. Wrapping papers, cardboards and paper boxes made from peat possess greater strength than similar articles made from straw."

FRENCH ENGRAVED BOOKS AT SCRIBNER'S.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will have on exhibition in their rare book department. until November 27, nearly two hundred engraved French books of the 18th century, when, according to Henry Cohen, "the illustrated book reached its pre-eminence by means of the subtle and refined pencil of a whole series of 'little masters,' marvellously seconded by a veritable phalanx of skilled engravers from the school of Cars, of Lebas, of Basan and many others of whose work examples are shown in the Scribner exhibition.

COMMUNICATIONS.

PUBLISHERS COMPETING WITH BOOKSELLERS FOR RETAIL TRADE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: A few days since a lady called at our store asking for two copies of a $1 net book issued a week or two ago. The books were shown to her, but when the price was asked and the reply given $1 net per copy, we were informed that the book could be purchased from the publisher for 85 cents. We refused to supply the book at that price, thinking that there must be some mistake about it, and at once wrote to the publishers stating the case and asking for a reply. We have just received the following letter:

.....NOVEMBER 13, 1907.

DEAR SIR: We are in receipt of your letter with regard to the price of.....sold at..... for 85 cents per copy. In reply we would say that you were correctly informed, but we should like to add a word or two with reference to the circumstances under which this book was offered.

As you may not know, it was handled by our Educational Department, who had an exhibition of their publications in.....for advertising purposes. It is the custom of other publishers to sell their educational books at these Institutes, to which teachers from all over the country come, at discounted prices, thereby saving the expense of donation copies. As the book, therefore, is an educational publication, it is not subject to the same rules as so-called A. P. A. nets. We thought from your letter that you might have been under this misapprehension, and therefore write you this explanation.

Very truly yours,

The writer recognizes the fact the publishers of the book in question have the right to sell this book at any price they please, but under such methods how long will it be before the public loses all confidence in advertised net prices? RETAIL BOOKSELLER.

THE STANDARD BIBLE DICTIONARY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In your issue of November 2, James D. Blake calls attention to a certain publisher who appears to be making a bid for business which properly belongs to the retailer. The offense, if it can be called by such a name, of Doubleday, Page & Co. is slight in comparison with that committed by the Funk & Wagnalls Company in the sale of their new one-volume "Standard Bible Dictionary." The book was announced as to be published at $6 net. The Funk & Wagnalls Company are members of the American Publishers' Association, and as such are supposed to publish net books under its rules. Their traveller solicited orders for the "Standard Bible Dictionary" with such an understanding held out as a reason why large orders should be placed, (100 copies 40 per cent.,) so that a clean 40 per cent. profit could be made, as the price of the book could not be cut.

After the trade had placed their orders, the publishers circularized the clergy of the country, offering the book at a special price of $4 net, or one-third of the net list price. When asked for an explanation, they replied that the bookseller ought to be satisfied with the 10 per cent. profit left for him. Further comment or explanation is unnecessary.

CHARLES M. ROE, Business Manager.
AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., November 16, 1907.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY'S REPLY TO MR. ROE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: With reference to the complaint of Charles M. Roe, our reply is that for years it has been our custom, as we think is generally understood by the trade, to offer in advance of publication copies of certain classes of books, as books of reference, at special prices—that is, at prices which are lower than what will be the prices after publication. In each case we allow the trade to take advance orders at this same special price and turn their orders over to us, and we fill them at our own expense, allowing ten per cent. clear profit. In these cases the trade has nothing to do except to notify us that they have booked these orders.

The "Standard Bible Dictionary" has not been issued, and will not be for some months. It is not our policy to solicit from the trade advance orders for books of this class. The booking of advance orders from the trade for the "Bible Dictionary" was contrary to our custom, and was an error made by our solicitor. FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY.
NEW YORK, November 20, 1907.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. HARRIET FARLEY DONLEVY, editor of the Lowell Offering, one of the earliest, if not the first, woman's magazine in the United States, died in New York City on the 15th inst., aged ninety-five.

WILLIAM HARTZ, publisher of Phillips' Elite and other business directories at 83 Nassau Street, New York City, died at his home, 223 Hawthorne Street, Flabush, L. I. Mr. Hartz was born in London, Eng., in 1857, and came to New York about thirty years ago. He entered the employ of the Phillips concern twenty-seven years ago and three years ago purchased the publication.

HORATIO RICHMOND PALMER, author and composer, died in Yonkers, N. Y., November 15. Dr. Palmer was born in Sherburne, N. Y., in 1834. He composed a number of hymns, among which are "The Rose of Sharon," "Galilee, Blue Galilee," "Come, Sinner, Come," "By and By We Shall Meet Him" and "Jesus Loves Little Children." Among his theoretical works are "Theory of Music," "Class Method," "Dictionary of Musical Terms" and "Manual for Teachers." At the time of the Chicago fire the plates of six of his books were melted while on the presses, and he lost the sale of many thousands of volumes before the plates could be reproduced.

PROFESSOR LUCIEN MARCUS UNDERWOOD, professor of botany at Columbia University since 1896, died November 15 by his own hand at his home in Redding, Conn. Professor Underwood was born at New Woodstock, N. Y., October 26, 1853, and was graduated from the Syracuse University in 1877. During the succeeding six years he served as an instructor in botany in various small colleges in Illinois. In 1881 he was elected a member of the faculty of Syracuse University; in 1891 he became professor at De Pauw University, in 1895 he went to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, where he remained only a year, when he received his appointment at Columbia University. His research work, conducted in great part in the New York Botanical Garden, created widespread attention in scientific circles. He was regarded as the foremost living authority on North American ferns and fungi. The publications of which he was the author dealt chiefly with these growths, and include a "Descriptive Catalogue of North American Hepaticæ," "Moulds, Mildews and Mushrooms," "Our Native Ferns and Their Allies," and "Our Native Ferns and How to Study Them."

MONCURE DANIEL CONWAY, the well-known author, minister, lecturer and journalist, died in Paris, November 16, the day he expected to sail for this country. Dr. Conway was born at Middleton, in Stafford County, Virginia, on March 17, 1832. Originally a Methodist preacher, and holding extreme Southern views, he came under the influence of Emerson and the radical opponents of slavery and changed both his political belief and his religious creeds. He entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, and on graduation essayed to preach Unitarian doctrine in his native State. His anti-slavery sentiments made his stay in the South impossible, and he therefore went to Cincinnati. Afterward, for a time, he edited the Boston Commonwealth, and in 1863 he visited England to make propaganda for the anti-slavery cause. The trustees of the ultra-liberal South Place Chapel, in London, secured his services, and there he preached from 1863 to 1884, when he returned to the United States. Again, from 1892 to 1897, he occupied his London pulpit, and then he retired to devote himself exclusively to literary work. In 1904 he published his "Autobiography," in which he told of his long and interesting life, and his associations with men of letters and distinguished persons at home and abroad. It includes recollections of Emerson, Walt Whitman, Longfellow, Robert Browning, Dickens and others. Dr. Conway's latest book, published in 1907, was entitled "My Pilgrimage to the Wise Men in the East." He travelled extensively, and was greatly interested in various religions of the Far East. His free thought on religion led to an estrangement with his father in his early youth. Among his other books were: "The Earthward Pilgrimage," "Idols and Ideals," "Demonology and Devil Lore," "The Wandering Jew," "The Sacred Anthology," "George Washington and Mount Vernon," Lives of Edmund Randolph, Thomas Paine, Hawthorne and Thomas Carlyle; "Barons of the Potomack and Rappahannock," "Emerson at Home and Abroad," "Pine and Palm," "Prisons of Air," "Republican Superstitions," and "Solomon and Solomonic Literature." A profound scholar, who touched life at many points, who came into contact with many of the greatest men of his time, his personality was ever most charming, and he won for himself many friends and admirers in all parts of the world.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE author of "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," Eliza Calvert Hall, is Eliza Calvert Obenchain, the wife of William Alexander Obenchain, president of Ogden College, Bowling Green, Ky.

THE author of "Father and Son," that most captivating of human documents recently brought out by the Scribners, is Edmund Gosse, [the son,] whose father was P. H. Gosse, the eminent zoölogist. The book is bound to become a heritage of literature.

THE author of "The Real Agatha," Miss Edith Huntington Mason, is the daughter of Edward G. Mason, the author, and granddaughter of former Mayor Mason of Chicago, and, although she has been a contributor to magazines for a few years, this is her first book.

PROFESSOR CHARLES ELIOT NORTON celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary at his home, Shady Hill, Cambridge, Mass., on November 16. He was in excellent health and received numerous callers during the day. Among the many congratulatory messages which came to him was one in book-form, signed by numerous undergraduates and graduates of Harvard University. The chief foreign tribute was an illuminated address from the Ruskin Society of Glasgow.

THE author of "Stories from the Old Testament for Children," published by Duffield & Co., Mrs. Harriet Blaine Beale, is the daughter of the late James G. Blaine, who, by the way, is also known to New Yorkers as the sister of Mrs. Walter Damrosch, and to Chicagoans as the sister-in-law of Mrs. Emmons Blaine. Herbert Moore and Roscoe Shrader, two young pupils of Howard Pyle, have been secured to illustrate Mrs. Beale's book. Both have contributed pictures that are achæologically correct, and yet so arranged as to composition and subjection of detail that they are alive with forceful realism.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The New England Magazine, which traces its origin back to 1758, is to be sold at auction in Boston, on November 26. No reason for the sale is given. According to the advertisement of the auctioneers the magazine has no outstanding debts. Under the present ownership it is edited by Edwin D. Mead, of Boston.

THE Christmas Number of The Bookman, (Dodd, Mead & Co.,) is a particularly attractive one, both from a typographic and literary point of view. The cover has a dignified design in colors and gold, the frontispiece is a reproduction of "The Nativity," from a painting by Gustav Doré, and the text includes an appreciation of Maurice Hewlett, by Hamilton W. Mabie, and an essay entitled "Maurice Hewlett—Meredithian," by Edward Clark Marsh. The book news and other departments are well represented, and the serial by Eden Phillpotts, "The Mother of the Man," has reached its thirty-third chapter without losing any of its interest or charm.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—C. L. Stebbins has sold out his interest in Small, Maynard & Co. and associated himself with Sherman, French & Co., for whom he will act as general manager. He still retains his connections with the American Unitarian Association. Mr. Stebbins has also recently been admitted to the Bar.

MOUNTAIN GROVE, MO.—The Opera House Book Store, which recently bought out the newsstand of M. A. Bowden and J. M. Cassil, is now owned by M. S. Glenn.

NEW YORK CITY.—The board of directors of the Associated Stationers' Company met on the 12th inst. and voted that steps be taken to put into operation immediately the co-operative buying scheme, for which purpose the company was formed about a year ago. It was asked also to reduce the capital stock to $20,000, to conform with the corporation laws of the State of New York, under which laws the company is incorporated. The active operation of the company will be left in the hands of the executive committee, together with A. T. Baxter, who promoted the company. The officers of the company are: president, Edward V. Brokaw; vice-president, Charles C. Talcott; treasurer, John Brewer; and secretary, Clarence M. Smith. The directors are: Edward V. Brokaw, Edward V. Brokaw & Bro., 52 New Street; Charles C. Talcott, Wilbur & Hastings, 37 Fulton Street; Charles A. Lent, Brown, Lent & Pett, 33 Maiden Lane; Lucius H. Bigelow, Jr., L. H. Bigelow & Co., 62 Broad Street; John Brewer, H. K. Brewer & Co., 33 Nassau Street; Clarence M. Smith, Smith & Thompson, 23 Beaver Street; Charles A. Udell, 82 Bleecker Street; James L. Clarke, Montross, Clarke & Emmons, 51 Nassau Street; Charles Murray, Gerry & Murray, 75 Broad Street; James J. Moore, Searing & Moore Co., 24 Beaver Street; George W. Schmidt, Corlies, Macy & Co., 441 Pearl Street; Thomas W. Evans, Shipman & Evans, 34 Murray Street; Henry G. Craig, Stewart, Warren & Co., 29 Howard Street; William G. Siegert, 78 Beaver Street, and Aaron Langstadter, 506 Sixth Avenue. The plan of the company is to profit by the combined power of its membership.

SHERIDAN, WYO.—E. V. Shields, of the Post Office Book and News Store, has been succeeded by J. C. Jackson.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HILLS & HAFELY CO., 27 East Twenty-second Street, New York, have brought out a new line of Birthday Cards for Children—three designs of "Teddy Bears," artistically drawn and handsomely printed in colors. The cards retail at five cents each.

A. WESSELS COMPANY have just ready by arrangement with Doubleday, Page & Co., another limited edition of Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s popular book, "The Clansman," the first cheap edition of which was exhausted within three months of date of issue.

HURST & CO. are first in the field with a reprint of "Hans Brinker, or, the Silver Skates," by Mary Mapes Dodge, the copyright on which has just expired. The reprint may be had in three styles—in the Every Boys' Library, in the Young American Library, and in the Boys' Own Library.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week F. Marion Crawford's Christmas story, "The Little City of Hope." The tale is concerned with a man's struggle against great odds, and the love of his wife, which saves him when in desperate case. A genuine Christmas spirit pervades the whole story of love and privation and hope deferred. The book has several attractive illustrations printed in color.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just brought out Octave Thanet's new story, "The Lion's Share," which, is is thought, will be found satisfying by the reader who likes a tale of plot and incident sharply and well told; also, "Love Songs Old and New," a collection of the old standbys that deal with love and gallantry, with pictures, in color, by Clarence F. Underwood that fairly reflect the sentiments expressed in the songs.

TENANT & WARD, New York City, are the American agents for "Photograms of the year 1907," a collection of typical photographic pictures of the year, compiled and criticized by the editors and staff of The Photographic Monthly. The volume is a literary and pictorial record of the best photographs of the year, the work of English, American, French, German, Spanish, Australian and Canadian artist-photographers being represented by upwards of 200 pictures.

THE GUILD OF BOOK WORKERS again call the attention of those interested in the making of good books, that T. J. Cobden-Sanderson, of the Doves Bindery and Doves Press, London, will give his lecture, entitled "The Book Beautiful—what it is and how it has been built up and decorated, also, the libraries of the world which have been built for its preservation and use," at the Carnegie Lyceum, Fifty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, New York City, on Tuesday evening, November 26, at 8:15. Tickets, at one dollar each, may be had from the Secretary of the Guild, Helen G. Haskell, 105 East Seventeenth Street, New York.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY have just ready "The New Cynic's Calendar for 1908," with which is combined "A Lexicon of Legal Phrases," designed to enlighten the uninitiated. Every epigram in the book is pithy and made for daily 1908 use. It is profusely illustrated and bound in bright gingham of many hues. A box of "Doggerel Dodgers" consists of several pictures of dogs and cats, in mats and ready to hang up in some private den—all very funny indeed. "The Spinners' Book of Fiction" is a volume of tales by California authors, which is fully noticed elsewhere; and "The Care of Summerfield," first published in a San Francisco paper.

IT is unfortunate that the title of "Camp and Trail," Stewart Edward White's new book, conflicts with "Camp and Trail," an important book by Isabel Hornibrook, on the Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co.'s list. Miss Hornibrook's book, which is a story of the Maine woods, and which makes a strong point of kindness to animals and learning their habits and taking their lives only when necessary, has too much vitality to suffer permanent injury in its sales, but an author may be pardoned a natural irritation when learning that orders intended for her work have been filled with the newer book. And very likely Mr. White suffers from the same cause.

E. P. DUTTON & CO. have just ready "Over-Sea Britain," a descriptive record of the geography, the historical, ethnological and political development, and the economic resources of the British Empire, by E. F. Knight; also, "Studies in the History of Venice," by Horatio F. Brown. At an early date they will publish "The Cities of Italy," by Arthur Symons; and "James Francis Edward: the Old Chevalier," by Martin Haile. This is the first "Life" in the full sense of the word of the "Old Pretender" that has yet appeared. Mr. Haile was privileged by King Edward VII. to consult the collection of MSS. at Windsor Castle, which throw much new light on the subject.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY have just ready "The English Stage To-day," a frank and full discussion of the subject by Dr. Mario Borsa, who treats of such topics as "George Bernard Shaw, his Marvelous Personality and the Marvels he Fails in Doing," "Stephen Phillips and his Contribution to the Literary Drama," "The Theatre of Ideas," "The English Censor Contrasted with Dante's Cerberus," etc.; "Sir Charles Wyndham," the English actor, by Florence Shore, a new volume in the Stars of the Stage series; also, "In and Around the Isle of Purbeck," by Ida Woodward, with 36 full-page illustrations in color by John W. G. Bond. Purbeck is an island by courtesy only, being in fact a twelve-mile peninsula on the Dorset coast. In Saxon times it was a hunting ground and retains a remarkable primitive character. Keats spent his last days in England in exploring the beauties of Lulworth Cove which, with the Tudor Castle of Lulworth, is one of the beauties of the island.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY publish this week a volume of travel that is perhaps their most magnificent book of the season, entitled 'Below the Cataracts." It is written and illustrated with sixty full-page plates in color by Walter Tyndale, who has spent some years of study and work in the Nile valley. It will make an appropriate gift for anyone who intends going to or who has visited Egypt, and likewise should be a delight to the lover of beautiful books and pictures. Other books just ready are a volume of poems entitled, "My Bunkie, and Other Ballads," by Erwin Clarkson Garrett, that will appeal especially to army people; and "The Life and Public Services of George Luther Stearns," written by his son, Frank Preston Stearns. In noting the forthcoming volume in the Variorum edition of Shakespeare, in our issue of November 9, the types led us into saying that Dr. Furness's latest volume "Antony and Cleopatra," was published a couple of years ago, when every bookseller knows that the book appeared only a couple of months ago.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. announce for publication November 30 "Augustus Saint-Gaudens," by Royal Cortissoz, whose standing as an art critic is second to none and who was an intimate friend of Saint-Gaudens, a book which will be the first adequate collection of pictures of the artist's sculpture; "Abraham Lincoln," by Carl Schurz and Truman H. Bartlett, a special edition illustrated by eighteen of the best portraits of Lincoln, accompanied by an essay on the portraits by the sculptor Bartlett; the third and fourth volume of "Napoleon," by Theodore A. Dodge, which go carefully into the military career of Napoleon; "The Art of Landscape Gardening," by Humphrey Repton, revised and edited by John Nolen; a second series of "Mornings in the College Chapel," by Francis G. Peabody; "Ship Subsidies," an economic study of the policy of subsidizing merchant marines, by Walter T. Dunmore, which is the Hart, Schaffner and Marx prize essay in economics for 1906; "Earl Percy's Dinner Table," by Harold Murdock, in a special edition; a Riverside Press edition of Sir Thomas Brown's "Urne-Buriall"; and the Dent edition, in three volumes, of Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Breakfast Table Series."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish shortly a book on South America by the Rev. Francis E. Clark, entitled "The Continent of Opportunity." Dr. Clark has just finished a long tour of investigation and inquiry, during which he visited practically all of the republics and their capitals, and had rare opportunities of meeting the various presidents and others in official life. He finds that the various republics, which are so confused in the average mind, have very marked characteristics and that those in the northern section of the continent are not nearly so progressive as their southern neighbors. He speaks with admiration of Brazil, Argentina, Chili and Peru, and is much impressed with the progressive spirit in Rio de Janeiro, where great things have been accomplished in the last three years. As to the religious conditions, he finds that they are free in every republic, except Peru, though some of the others still maintain Catholicism as the state religion. The volume is fully illustrated and provided with an up-to-date map. They are also about to bring out a volume entitled "China in Legend and Story," by C. Campbell Brown, whose object is to show how Chinese people live and think, and to show this by intimate stories from behind the scenes that discover the Chinaman as he is naturally and what effect is produced on him by contact with Christianity and Western ideas. There are seventeen stories in all and some of them are written down as nearly as possible as they are current among the people.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

THE JACOBS LIST

An Aggressive Advertising Campaign is Creating a Demand for this Book from Every Quarter of the Country

The Code of Victor Jallot

Cloth, 12mo. Price, $1.50

Illustrated in Color by Elenore Plaisted Abbott

By Edward Childs Carpenter

Author of "Captain Courtesy"

It is a stirring, thrilling story of old New Orleans—the kind of story that is talked about and draws its readers from every section of the country. It is a tale of love and romance in the Creole days—of a princess sold on the slave block—of a man who purchased the woman he loved. Order stock now. It is still being advertised, and the demand is steadily growing.

A TIMELY BOOK

THE IDEAL SYSTEM OF FINANCE

By MAURICE J. BURSTEIN, A.M., M.D., LL.B.

12mo. 48 pages. Paper Bound, Price 10 cents.

Have you been worried about the security of your money and the soundness of your bank during the recent money troubles in New York and elsewhere? Show me the man or woman who wasn't! This book explains how all this trouble can be avoided in future, and presents a scheme which, if adopted, will revolutionize finance. It is a practical scheme, too, and one that every thinking man will want to read about, and which every person who has a single dollar on deposit anywhere, should read for the protection and safeguarding of his or her own welfare.

It will make a stir in the world of finance.

Every dealer should not only read it, but push its sale as well.

LOVER OF TRAVEL OR PICTURES

Below the Cataracts

Written and Illustrated with

SIXTY FULL-PAGE PLATES IN COLOR

By WALTER TYNDALE

Of books on Egypt there is no end! Every cultured traveller seems bent on recording his impression of the wonderland of the Pharaohs. Archæologists, historians, and students of nature have vied with each other in extolling the miracles of the Nile Valley. Artists also have gone there in search of the picturesque and the beautiful, but none among them surely has been so fully imbued with the sunshine of the Desert, and the mysteries of its Saracenic architecture in Cairo, and the immensity of the monuments that have come down from Ancient Egypt, as the present artist (Walter Tyndale) in his sketches. He has lived among the people and has got to know them intimately. He has accompanied explorers and archæologists in their tramps, and shows us Egypt from the Cataracts down to the broad Delta as surely no other artist has ever painted it before. His text illuminates his drawings and renders the book an indispensable companion for any one who goes to Egypt. To those at home it will be a joy and bring a breath of the desert air into the grey monotony of life in the north.

TWO CHARMING HOLIDAY VOLUMES

RALPH HENRY BARBOUR'S

Holly

The Romance of a Southern Girl

In blue and gold, or red and gold covers, with four full-page illustrations in colors and dainty marginal and text drawings, this romance makes a beautiful addition to the holiday season list of books.

It is a very sweet, pure story, reminding one of the fragrance of old Southern garden roses and the young girls blooming in them as sweet as the roses are.

The story is associated with Christmas, and, as a gift-book, nothing could be prettier or more appropriate.

Small Quarto. Decorated Cloth, with Medallion, in a box, $2.00.

GEORGE MACDONALD'S

The Princess and the Goblin

"This exquisite piece of fancy should be in the library of every child."—The Circle Magazine.

We have prepared just for the girls and boys a sumptuous holiday edition of an old favorite which has been in constant demand since it was first published some years ago.

This new edition has twelve full-page illustrations in colors besides the original wood engravings after Arthur Hughes, and is prettily bound in red cloth with gold tops.

Octavo. 305 pages. Decorated Cloth, $1.50.
